Elisabeth Rolfes studied law at the universities of Münster and Helsinki. She successfully passed the first state bar exam at the Higher Regional Court of Hamm in 2017. She is also a graduate of the specialized foreign language training in common law.

After passing the first state examination, Elisabeth Rolfes worked as a research assistant at a major international law firm in Düsseldorf. In 2018, she began her legal clerkship at the Regional Court of Münster. During her clerkship, Elisabeth Rolfes worked for the Research Service of the German Bundestag in Berlin, among other places. While completing her clerkship, she also worked as a lecturer for private tutoring sessions at a prominent German legal tutoring firm. In 2020, Elisabeth Rolfes passed the second state examination and subsequently worked as a lawyer at a national law firm in Münster that specializes in public and private construction law.

Since 2025, Elisabeth Rolfes has been advising clients at Leinemann Partner Rechtsanwälte at the Hamburg office. She specializes in private construction and architectural law, as well as in real estate law.

The Handelsblatt has once again recognized Elisabeth Rolfes as one of the “Ones to watch” in property law for 2026, as it did for 2025.

Elisabeth Rolfes is a member of the Deutscher Juristinnenbund e.V. (djb) and the Hanseatische Rechtsanwaltskammer Hamburg.
