Dr Kristian Heise studied law at the University of Potsdam. After passing his first state law examination, he worked as a research assistant in the field of public law, earning his doctorate in budget law. After completing his doctorate, he undertook his legal clerkship at the Berlin Court of Appeal. During this time, he completed placements at the Federal Ministry of the Interior, Building and Community, a medium-sized law firm specialising in construction and real estate law; and the Brandenburg State Court of Auditors. He successfully completed his legal clerkship in August 2019 by passing his second state law examination.

Dr Kristian Heise gained his first experience as a lawyer in Berlin, working initially at a large law firm in the field of emissions trading law as well as installation-related environmental law and subsequently at a small to mid-sized law firm specializing in land-use planning, regional and state planning, environmental law, wind energy, photovoltaics, and municipal law.

Then Dr Kristian Heise worked as a corporate lawyer at a state-owned Berlin company responsible for the renovation, operation and development of an important historical monument in accordance with monument preservation guidelines, first in the procurement department and later in the legal department.

Since August 2025. Dr Kristian Heise has worked at Leinemann Partner Rechtsanwälte in Hamburg, specialising in private construction law.

He is also a member of the Hanseatic Bar Association in Hamburg.
